Budget System and Economy in Washington Is Promised by Nominee

From a Staff Correspondent WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 28.—The high cost of living, the housing shortage and other unhappy conditions of American life were attributed by Senator Harding in a speech at the Auditorium here to-night to the inefficiency of the Democratic Administraton. The Republican candidate declared excessive on war loans had drawn money, the life of trade. Predicting the complete collapse of the American industrial system if the process continued, Senator

Harding promised relief for the nation if he should be elected, through budget reforms, strict economy and a real Ohio's tortuous right of way through West Virginia. Senator Harding spoke first at Grafton, then at Mannington,

"Where is that man Harding?"
It developed that his car had been engulfed in the parade that continued to march back and forth thro: the streets of Wheeling long s the Auditorium had been filled to doors. When Senator Harding chered the hall, about ten minutes after Mrs. Harding, he was cheered for several minutes, the cheer ending in a laugh as some one shouted:

Wheel Breaks, Kills Girl Clips Another's Hair

RICHMOND, Ky., Sept. 28 .-A portion of a bursting fly wheel sailed through the roof of the electric light plant early to-day to the home of Wallace Hunter, 600 yards away, where it killed his young daughter, Fanny, and clipped the braids from the head of her sleeping woman companion. The missile crashed through the floor and side of the dwelling and was found in the yard two feet under ground.
